Siamese twins life-after-death SHOCKER

One went to HEAVEN — the other went to HELL!

By ANN HUGHEY
Special to The NEWS

Siamese twins who died on the operating table and were later revived have given shockingly different descriptions of the hereafter — because one of them went to heaven and the other went to hell!

The drama unfolded as 28-year-old Milos and Stefan Sestak, who are joined at the chest, died during surgery to repair one of the valves of the single heart they share.

Frantic doctors were able to restart the brothers' heart after seven minutes and went on to successfully complete the operation. But hours later they were shocked when the twins revealed their fantastic journeys into the afterlife.

"I was stunned by their stories, but I'm convinced every word they said is true," said Dr. Oldrich Bachar, who later interviewed Milos and Stefan under hypnosis.

"Milos' description of heaven is very similar to what others have reported, but Stefan's experience was a different story entirely. He described a horrible, evil place that can only have been hell."

Under hypnosis, Milos revealed he wasn't frightened as his spirit rose out of his body.

"I floated up to the ceiling and could see the doctors below working over me and Stefan," he said.

"At first it was scary, but then I felt at peace. I traveled up a long stairway with a bright light at the top.

"When I got there I was met by a beautiful lady with golden hair who took my hand. She led me to another room where I met Jesus.

"He asked me if I wanted to stay or return to my family. When I said I wanted to go back, He let me."

Stefan's story was the exact opposite of his brother's. Instead of peace and beauty, he was surrounded by darkness and evil.

"I felt myself leaving my body and being pulled down to the ground," said Stefan. "Then a crack opened up in the floor and I fell deeper and deeper into the earth.

"When I stopped, I was in a huge cave-like room surrounded in white-hot flames. I was terrified. I wanted to run but I couldn't, and when I screamed no sound came out.

"I felt like the room was filled with an evil force. Then I heard a voice say there'd been a mistake, and a beam of light came down and lifted me up out of the darkness."

Dr. Bachar noted that the brothers' incredible life-after-death experience is becoming more and more common.

"There have been dozens and dozens of cases reported worldwide over the last few years," said the esteemed Prague Czechoslovakia, psychiatrist.

"They've all been clinically dead, seen a glimpse of the hereafter and then returned to the living."

Pimple plague hits yuppies

The latest adult yuppie skin disease is — ouch — acne!

That's right. According to skin doctor Albert Kligman of the University of Pennsylvania, acne outbreaks among adults have reached "epidemic" proportions.

The pimple plague is caused by stress, hairstyling mousse and aerobic exercise, experts say. It affects about 25 percent of adults and is worse among women.

SHOCKING PROOF!

NASA FAKED MOON LANDING

Fantastic flimflam filmed in the Nevada desert, expert reveals!

NASA claims to have sent astronauts to the moon six times between 1969 and 1972 but dramatic new evidence proves that the $30 billion program was a hoax — filmed on a movie set in the Nevada desert!

Bill Kaysing, author of We Never Went to the Moon, America's $30 Billion Swindle (Desert Publications, Cornville, Ariz.), says that NASA had neither the technology nor the resolve to rocket men to the moon but instead conspired to deceive the American public for one reason and one reason only: To keep the tax dollars flowing so the agency could stay in business.

"The moon program was a hoax," declared Kaysing, former chief of technical productions at Rocketdyne Propulsion Laboratories, a rocket engine developer.

"It was a $30 billion swindle," he added. "The National Aeronautics and Space Administration staged the whole thing."

NASA denies the allegations and insists that the agency sent men to the moon in manned missions after missions. But to prove his point, Kaysing notes that:

● No stars appear in any of the pictures that were allegedly taken from the moon nor were any mentioned by the astronauts. Since the moon has no atmosphere to diffuse their light, the stars should have looked spectacular.

● NASA has never released any photos in which the moon can be seen in relationship to planets other than Earth, because those relationships would be almost impossible to fake, said Kaysing.

Pictures of Earth that were allegedly taken from the lunar surface are patent fakes, he added, because the Earth appears much too small in relationship to the lunar horizon.

● Lunar landers should have kicked up tons of dust and debris as they landed on the moon but photos show that the areas directly under the modules' rocket engines are undisturbed. If powerful rockets didn't affect the lunar surface as the module landed, asked Kaysing, why are the astronaut's bootprints clearly visible in the dust?

● Pictures taken with the sun behind the astronauts

INCREDIBLE! Circles carelessly shown in moon landing photo above confirms that NASA staged the moon landings as a movie set made to resemble the moon's surface.

Greatest movie ever made moon landing hoax!

EARTH appears much too small in relationship to the moon's horizon in NASA's photos of the moon landings, says expert.

ASTRONAUTS footprints made more of an impression in the moon's surface than did the Jimmy Hoffer, as shown in photo.

How NASA pulled it off!

The elaborate moon landing hoax was produced just like a Hollywood movie — with an incredibly realistic underground "set" that included phony moon terrain, vehicles and views of the planet Earth.

Lights, and sounds from the spaceship Apollo, the lunar landing module and the astronauts on the moon were recorded on tape in Nevada months before the supposed mission, according to Kaysing. The fake missions cost billions of dollars to simulate, but far less than a real flight might have.

Kaysing's sources describe how the phony moon mission — code-named SSP (Apollo Simulation Project) — was created:

● A giant base 22 miles east of Mercury, Nev., complete with landing strips, underground sets of moon terrain, scale models of the Earth, sun and moon and high-tech sound stages that rivaled Hollywood studios. The base was isolated and heavily guarded.

● A vast staff of highly-paid technicians, advisers and filmmakers, about 400 thousands of support personnel. The astronauts, handpicked and specially trained for the project, were the star members of this staff.

● A communications network of staggering proportions, designed to feed information from the phony moon mission to a gullible audience worldwide. The network disseminated pre-recorded television and radio broadcasts through cables and telephone wires connected to the supposed inputs of all space communications centers, including tracking stations in Australia, Africa and North America.

● Simulated "proof" of a moon visit, including thousands of photos, artificial "moon rocks" and samples of "moon dust."

● A totally realistic "blast-off" in which a dummy Apollo spacecraft was launched in full view of television cameras and witnesses. The astronauts were shown boarding the phony craft, but were whisked and spirited away to waiting helicopters before the launch. The dummy spacecraft soared out of sight, but came down moments later in unpopulated Antarctica.

● A realistic re-entry operation in which the command module was dropped from a plane for splashdown and fished out of the ocean — just as if the astronauts had just returned from a moon voyage.

show bright detail on helmet visors and the braid of their suits. This could only be done with artificial lighting of the type that is used on movie sets.

● Information pertaining to the Apollo moon missions is not classified but is not available to the public. Even stranger, the Apollo astronauts themselves have made it clear that they don't care to discuss their missions with anyone other than their NASA bosses.

● It would have been a simple matter for astronauts to signal Earth and all mankind with silver foil or a laser device after they reached the moon but they didn't.

It's hard to imagine how NASA could have overlooked such a public relations stunt.

● Analyses have shown that moon rocks are composed of minerals that are common on Earth and could only be formed in the presence of oxygen. There is no oxygen on the moon.

● There is no atmosphere to shield the lunar surface from the sun's rays and as a result, temperatures reach 250° F during the day and -250° F at night.

The space suits worn by the astronauts weren't designed to protect them from such temperature extremes, Kaysing said.

● If Apollo astronauts had really flown to the moon they would have passed through radiation belts that would have burned them to crisps.

Astronauts who merely orbit Earth don't encounter these belts and return unharmed.

SEX GIVES MEN HEADACHES

Shocking study: Guys — not gals — are saying NO!

By MARTHA ATKINS

Contrary to popular belief, when it comes to having sex the guys are more likely to say "Not tonight, dear, I've got a headache" than the gals are, according to a new study!

And it's not just an excuse to get out of making love because they're tired or aren't in the mood, say top researchers. Incredibly, just the thought of a romp in the hay can bring on a migraine for thousands of harried husbands.

"Men are much more likely to suffer sex-related headaches than women," said Dr. Clifford Ross, one of the scientists who took part in the worldwide survey.

"And the men who are most susceptible are married men who feel guilty because they're cheating on their wives."

The scientists discovered the bizarre affliction they are calling Sexual Headache Syndrome while researching new painkillers. The following are the three types of sex-related headaches the experts identified:

● Sex headache No. 1: "The most common type of sex-related headache is the benign headache," said Dr. Ross, who runs a London migraine clinic. "This headache is so severe it completely inhibits sufferers from having sex.

"We don't know precisely how it happens, but it's probably caused by a build-up of pressure inside the head."

● Sex headache No. 2: "The second type is less common and is brought on by strenuous sexual exercise," Dr. Ross continued. "There is a dull, migraine-type throbbing pain on one side of the head."

● Sex headache No. 3: "This is the worst kind but fortunately it's the rarest," said the top doc. "The build-up of pressure during sex is so great that blood vessels burst.

"It can be so severe that it can not only cause a brain hemorrhage but in severe cases even death."

Montana gal finds lions in hen house

Debbie Mahaney got the surprise of her life when she went into her hen house to gather eggs and discovered two mountain lion cubs curled up in the straw!

"I said some dirty words, shut the door and ran as fast I could," said the Livingston, Mont., woman. "And all I wanted was a little breakfast."

Wildlife department workers later captured the cubs, but not before they'd chewed down on three hens and killed another one.

Police bug tombs to listen in on mob!

Italian authorities got the inside scoop on the dirty tricks Mafia kingpins were planning — by bugging tombs in a cemetery where mob members held their secret meetings!

The information obtained in the undercover operation enabled organized crime agents in Naples to make hundreds of busts and crush the mob's operations. "The bugging was a total success," said Detective Carlo Visalli.

NEWS readers tell how they conquered pain and stiffness

By SUSAN JIMISON

Simple home remedies can banish the agonizing aches and pains of arthritis — for just pennies a day.

That's the consensus among concerned NEWS readers who have written in describing their personal battles against the crippling disease.

They've turned their backs on expensive drugs and medical treatments and worked out their own miracle remedies, using everything from daily doses of cod-liver oil to massage.

And the latest scientific research indicates that our readers are on the right track. Most of the home cures they recommend supply vital nutrients, increase circulation in stiffened joints and help eliminate allergic reactions that can aggravate the condition.

Dozens of simple and effective home remedies were described by NEWS readers. Here are 12 of the most successful cures, each of which has been recommended by many of our readers.

● Cod-liver oil: "One tablespoon a day before bed has worked wonders for me," wrote Barbara Nese, a Philadelphia housewife. "I had tried every kind of medicine, but nothing worked to ease the swelling and pain until my neighbor told me about cod-liver oil. Now I'm pain-free."

● Exercise: "I used to be afraid to move my joints for fear of the pain, but I'm back at it again," wrote Clarence O'Connor of Ithaca, N.Y. "But once I forced myself to exercise daily, I was astounded at the difference. Now my arthritis is nearly gone and I can walk five miles a day without the slightest discomfort."

● Heat treatments: "Every time my pain hits, I head for the bathtub," said Sybil Thomas, a grandmother of five. "Soaking in hot water drives away the aches. Hot showers and heating pads work the same miracle for me — I recommend it to anyone who suffers from arthritis."

THIS group of arthritis sufferers exercise to ease pain.

● Avoid food additives: "I woke up every morning crying from the pain until I discovered that watching what I ate was the secret to my pain-ease," wrote Esther McKeen of Montreal. "I cut out products with food additives and within two months I felt better than I had in years."

● Check out allergies: "For me it was coffee and tea, for my daughter it was wheat products — but for both of us the cause of our arthritis was food allergies," said Thomas Plumber of Augusta, Ga. "Once we eliminated these troublemakers from our diets, our arthritis was gone. After years of drugs and doctors, the answer was so simple."

● Calcium supplements: "I started taking calcium supplements last year when I was desperate for anything that would relieve my pain." Dora Kilgor, 68, wrote The NEWS. "After so many years of hurting, I was amazed when I started feeling human again. The supplements cost pennies a day, but they've saved my pain the way expensive pills never did."

● Rice supplements: "My husband suggested I try rice supplements after he read an article in your paper," wrote Maria Castellano of Queens, N.Y. "Now I can raise my arms above my shoulders — something I haven't been able to do for eight years."

● Vitamin E: "I bought a bottle at the health food store and took a daily dose," wrote conservationist Brian McDonnell of Detroit, Mich. "The vitamin E started working within a week and its effects have been permanent. As long as I take it, I stay pain-free."

● Vitamin C: "I couldn't write letters, I couldn't cook, I was a cripple before I started taking vitamin C," confessed Melinda Beck, 81, of Little Rock, Ark. "But now I'm a new person. I've regained the use of my hands, and all it took was a simple dietary supplement. I wish I'd known about this years ago when I first got arthritis."

● Salesman: "Tried the mineral solution to reduce the swelling and stiffness in my knees," wrote farmer Dan Walker of Asheville, N.C. "Now I want to spread the word — it's the best thing I've ever encountered. I'm working like a young man again thanks to selenium."

● Parsley soup pain: "I let down and visualize my pain receding and after about an hour, I feel much better," said Catherine Jones of Hoopes, Tex. "I have shared my 'secret' with friends who suffer from arthritis and they've had the same success. It really works."

● Massage: "Only one thing works for me, and that's rubbing away the pain," wrote William Septin of Mobile, Ala. "I use a lotion and massage my ankles each morning and I'm fine for the rest of the day."

PAYING bills was a nightmare for Illinois hubby Paul Sims — until he restrained his shopping-mad wife Margaret by chaining her to their bed. The strategy seems to be working, reports Mrs. Sims. "I'm beginning to lose my desire to shop."

Hubby chains shop-aholic wife to the bed — to keep her out of the mall!

ENOUGH is enough! Mrs. Sims' shopping addiction filled their closet — and ran up almost $12,000 in bills.

By ROGER FROST
(Correspondent)

Shop-aholic Margaret Sims was spending her hubby into the poorhouse until he realized he could keep her out of the mall — by chaining her to their bed!

And far from crying foul, the 23-year-old Illinois woman says her husband "did the right thing because I have absolutely no willpower at all."

Before he leaves for work in the morning Paul Sims clamps a leg iron onto Margaret's ankle. The steel chain is long enough for her to reach the bathroom and a bedside phone lets her call a neighbor who has a key in case of an emergency. Sims, 24, told a reporter.

"Now don't get me wrong. I love my wife with all my heart. But sometimes you just have to draw the line," said Sims.

Oddly enough, Sims said his wife was a skinflint when they first got married but changed dramatically after their second anniversary last August.

"The neat thing I know she was spending eight to 10 hours a day in the mall. And she wasn't there to look — she was there to buy. She charged almost $12,000 between August and December — and it all went for clothes."

. . . and she doesn't mind at all

When Sims realized his wife's spending was out of control, he my hobbies at work jokingly suggested that I chain her to the bed," said Sims.

"The more I thought about it and she said: 'I have no control over myself. I'm willing to give it a try.'"

Sims makes sure she has home from work and releases her.

Mrs Sims said: "We've been using the chain for six weeks

A couple who went from rags to riches in a matter of months gives all the credit for their success to their 9-year-old son — who runs the family like a corporation!

Karl and Christine Webber gladly hand over their paychecks to the brainy boy who manages the family finances and gives his parents a weekly allowance.

Boy takes charge of chequebook — & pulls family out of debt!

Paul Webber, a little genius who lives with his family near Bern, Switzerland, took over the finances of a time when the family was deeply in debt and about to be evicted from their home.

"Just 18 months ago everything looked pretty bleak and there didn't seem to be any way out of our situation," said Webber, 36. "Paul has always had a knack for understanding things and one day he said he would make us rich if we'd let him manage our money. We really didn't have anything to lose by letting Paul take over."

The first thing the family had to do was escape its income. Paul said. "The best thing we needed to do was to renegotiate and run up debt," the addict.

Paul's mother had worried about the family's finances and he

"When you don't own business you don't have to worry about getting laid off," Paul said. "Now we have two children to care for and the business is really booming."

With Paul in control the Webbers have managed to pay off all their old debts and build up a sizable savings.

We could afford to buy a house of our own now, but Paul decided that we should buy an industrial property first," Mrs. Webber said. "He got more in rental income than we paid out in mortgage interest."

Vandal fingered by pal's missing thumb

Darla Engel left an unusual calling card when he ran over a mailbox, said cops — his friend's thumb!

After the Glass Kane man rammed the truck, his buddy hit the mailbox with his thumb, cops said. Stephen Lance, 27, called for help and hitched a ride with a passing motorist.

While Engel shifted gears to ram the truck, his buddy's thumb hit the window and severed it, cops said.

Lance got a ride to the hospital where he had his thumb reattached. Cops charged Engel with assault.

WORLD'S HOTTEST GOSSIP

The shocking truth about America's favorite movie mutt

By JOHN HANNON

BENJI WAS GAY

. . . AND HE DIED OF AIDS!

Benji, the movie mutt beloved by millions, was a gay old dog who died a lonely but peaceful death from canine AIDS, says investigative reporter Mark Kramer.

"Benji was the Rock Hudson of the celebrity pet jet set. The real Benji — the hot-blooded homosexual hound dog — was one of Hollywood's best-kept secrets for years. Only now that Benji has succumbed to canine AIDS has the shocking truth come out — the kennel club orgies, the wild backstage parties at dog shows and the midnight rendezvous in darkened pet-store windows.

"It's not easy being a show-business homosexual. Like Arnold the Pig and Montgomery Cliff and so many others,

BELOVED Benji was the Rock Hudson of the animal world. By day he charmed youngsters with his wholesome antics, but at night he prowled the gay underworld.

Benji was forced to lead a double life of secrets and shame."

According to Walter Barkeryes, a [illegible] director and owner who [illegible] Benji, [illegible] a leading connoisseur of homosexual a[illegible]. He would arrive in the company patrol or other park study breaks."

And check out this shocking recollec-

and out Robert Mapplethorpe protege Paula Wilkins:

"Benji and I were close personal friends back in the early '80s. We'd make the rounds of the most notorious gay flesh dens. Benji had a little black leather vest and spiked collar and I'd walk him on a studded leash. There were a lot of drugs back then, and we once overdosed on Halcion (he daughter's combination with Ray Cokes and a couple of Sharpies from the Chinese delegation at the U.N. Benji and I shared a cooking needle."

Where and when Benji was actually infected with the AIDS virus will never be known.

"Some have suggested that he picked it up during a romp while on location in Kuwait during the filming of 'Dr. Pudgeworthy Dog,' says Wickers.

Top canine AIDS researcher Dr. K.V. Shitzdafixum reports: "Canine AIDS is here to stay." A 1990 study found that up to half of all dogs have the virus.

Chris Evans looked positively hopeless as he departed with what remained of his stylish dignity intact after the ridiculous medical treatment he had brought veterinary clinics.

"But nothing worked. When he skipped into a vet's last week he was clutching a medallion of St. Bernard," said Vickers.

And nine popular variants of dogs that had minor love scenes with Benji are having their position tested for canine AIDS. — Special to Weekly World News

This is what my unique vitamin formula has done for my hair at 50...

Why not find out what it can do for yours...by accepting the first full month's supply of it, FREE, plus 2 other FREE GIFTS for you!

Meet the woman who is giving you this INCREDIBLE $58.85 in FREE GIFTS!

You See, If You Have Problem Hair, Read This— At 50, I Have To Cut It Inches Off My Hair Every Two Months. Otherwise, It Might Very Well Have Right Down Past My Waist.

And not only have I developed a special Hair Vitamin formula that helps make it that way, but I'd like to give you yours free and myself a supply as my Free Gift.

The full details are below.

I've developed this absolutely unprecedented prescription of my own hair, when when I was 34 years and 31 days old. I had been going gotten thick, really lustrous hair. So you would can almost guess at what has since.

Now I'd like you to look at that unretouched photograph over there – as carefully than of any there is compelling glow beauty can do for. And ask yourself these three questions.

1. In my hair like Olivia's, in-the, thinning hair would appear to a thirty-six woman? Especially a 50-year-old woman who is not too keen to see the wrinkles she shares, every day.

2. Does that hair seem like real to you, the kind of confidence, that kind of hair you'd really like your best friend to have today – no matter what your age?

3. And now really the length of that hair. Reaches that is nearly down past my waist. If I didn't cut two inches off it every two months. For two years. It never ends you'll get that kind of growth, because they don't know how to give that kind of vitamin. And it really is nothing to spend one short month – or any cost, and not want to use it for whatever can help your hair look like mine . . . grow like mine . . . shine like mine – because the first step you take. Hair by one inch at least your hands, and your hair, the absolutely proper nutrition it should have – then just read on

And To Prove The Power Of These Pills, I Have To Tell You Just A Little More About My Own Hair Right Now...

Part of the routine of my photography assignments, I now keep my hair really 31 inches long. And it's still as thick and as shiny as it was when I was in my twenties. And it has as much life and vitality that, when I did a TV commercial for a leading hair conditioner, the producer asked one of the staff to tighten my hair—literally as it is 4 months I liked the volume.

Second, and even more important, even at 51, I never in my business I tell the story I look, at a glance and as a casual aspect. And as I myself grow older and older more and more women begin to believe my essential message – that more than being really beautiful, and keep yourself beautiful, despite any number of years. And you can do that simply the fact that you'll do what is "in the run" – whether as housewife, mother, or working woman, at all times. What you don't have to give yourself the "Walk Power" makeover you'd like your self to have, every single day.

Therefore, but apologies, that this "Hair-Good Medicine" could spare true does with your hair. For you need rather than I have kept it from graying almost an over 10 years – that I look blonde and rather my hair – than I've been after I stop, due after also, for a private dinner or lunch – and my hair STILL looks like this.

So Let Me Put It As Bluntly As This —

I want the 30 days to find out how to make my hair thicker, stronger, and lustrous, longer. With each shampoo like and shine that you see can't keep the locks off it. And I'd like to share my Number One Secret with you—proven Hair Number One Secret to your—without your risking a penny.

What I learned can be helpful there as readily as this. I found that the best "Hair-Lines" Hair Treatment in the world—by far than anything I could conceivably BUY at that time – is the proper kind of vitamins and minerals. For one very simple reason.

That no matter how much money I spend for a shampoo or conditioner or treatment to put On the hair — no matter how many vitamins, or hormones, or enzymes, or other concoctions or other materials I can have—my hair will can't digest them any

MEET [illegible]

If you have falling or thinning hair, then you need to read this. If your hair has or you are or hereditary causes, but a clinically proven vitamin supplement ... that delivers what your hair and scalp literally THRIVE when these proven ingredients are finally provided.

Why not try the FREE Gift Offer – already at the risk!

example, too. And therefore the only way I can feed my scalp and the hair-roots that way and have it through my mouth.

And This Is What It Takes Over 30.

And not only does your hair need an extra daily dosage and nutrients as it gets older. But that the ordinary, over-processed over-washed foods we live on are an incredible drain of these precious nutrients.

And certain foods you eat, and certain beverages you drink, actually destroy the vital B-complex vitamins that are so needed for the nourishment of your hair. So if your hair is aging and fading, or less lustrous than your neighbor's, then I know beyond a shadow the real explanation may very well be enough.

And, worst of all, if you work too hard, as I do, and use the coming break of heat, as I do, and weather your hair, as I do, then your hair – nature's way to the best treasure as—nutrients of your life.

When I think of the wonderful results through these specialized hair formulas provided on the replacing of my hair, I could almost cry. And I want share with you how the scientist came to help with what I call "vitamin-deficiency" processes-signs of your hair.

Vitamin and mineral supplements are the answer all around. Use the supplement that suits you, what's more! I will suggest which I think of our business itself in the work that I'm now loaded with fortified.

Sometimes I Wonder Why I'm So Old-Fashioned. And To Get The Full List Of Nutrients That I Wanted To Be The Job.

And then I started thinking about a new, combined "Hair Vitamin" that contained all the ingredients that I thought the hair I couldn't afford to let my hair lose vitality — and that new other women who care for our hair as much as the proper nutrients as for that hair couldn't afford to let her hair lose vitality.

There are vitamins that are essential for the health and strength of your entire body, including your hair — plus minerals that help produce a variety of rich nourishing blood to your entire body, including your hair — plus minerals and even "trace elements" felt necessary by nutritionists and researchers to be essential to a sound, healthy body, including your hair.

And when I had put these all these ingredients, and nutrients, and trace elements, and added them up in my formula, my hair had the work a makeover and gave – that it's as age 30— almost as you appear in newspapers and magazine ads and commercials.

War protesters full of camel poop, sez Ed!

I'm madder than a Marine with a tooth centered over all these hippie peaceniks marching around America's streets protesting the war.

I thought we exterminated these human rats punchcard-style and for all back in the 1960s, for crying out loud!

Let's face it. If these peaceniks had their way, Saddam Hussein would be sitting in the White House right now.

And a shocking new study by the prestigious Stratford Poll shows that nearly 97 per cent of war protesters are made up of drug addicts, lesbian women's libbers, schizophrenics, college dropouts and religious nuts. Something tells me those people truly know all along the way.

It makes the metal plate in my head — a little souvenir from the Battle of Pork Chop Hill in Korea — heat up like a stove burner when I see these treasonous creeps waving their pro-Iraqi and shouting anti-American filth while our boys fight and die in the Iraqi desert.

There ought to be a law against — or at least a rule of the road banning — that kind of thing. And when they did on the 6 o'clock news the other night, it'll be the LAST march for over-stripes.

But what really kicked me in the ass was when I heard all that anti-war garbage coming out of the mouths of those pinheads in Hollywood.

Hey, those weird Hope are always screaming about wanting to live with Allah, aren't they?

Then we're doing them a favor by giving them all the gigs with warm hell like Iraq, eh? Send Bob Hope to Baghdad!

I've got a great idea about how to get rid of this stupid protest without laying a finger on any of them!

I'm — roll out the fire hoses and wash 'em down right across this great land of ours!

☐ YES, I agree with Ed that any protester who would rather see Saddam Hussein win than support our troops should be tarred and feathered and run out of the White House!

☐ NO! These Anti-Troop Peaceniks have a right to protest this war — even if they are a bunch of traitorous bastards!

Sicko flasher gets frostbite — in the wrong place!

Dingbat flasher Hugo Fletcher was charged with 31 counts of indecent exposure after he bobbled into a hospital with a painful case of frostbite — on his penis!

"We've been looking for this guy for weeks, and I was beginning to think we were never going to get hold of him," said delighted Detective Peter Dilk.

"He's been lurking around and there he is, relaxed, showing himself off to women and scaring the holy hell out of them since last November.

"But it finally caught up with the little creep. They say he was awful cold and awful proud when he stumbled into the emergency room of Tooting Hospital, exposing his manhood to hundreds of shell-shocked victims.

"We had a real good description of the loon — and I mean from the top of his head right on down," Det. Dilk told reporters. "But he proved to be very slippery. He'd show up, wave his wang in front of the screaming women, and then vanish into thin air."

But law-enforcer Hugo, 41, got his comeuppance the day he flash-dressed through the city for eight hour-chilling hours — and nearly froze his family jewels off.

day. He was whimpering and begging the nurses not to amputate."

Cops say the sleazy exhibitionist has admitted being the sicko-freak who dashed through the streets of Tooting wearing nothing but a heavy overcoat, his shoes and socks and a long scarf — with no pants underneath it," said assistant emergency room nurse Rhoda Hammel.

"She was holding hands of kind sweetness, and when we got a look at his penis it was obvious he'd let the thing get way too cold."

Embarrassed Hugo told cops he'd exposed himself to 300 women during his three-month sex spree — more than 20 of them on the fateful day his penis froze.

"The nurses were very professional, but cops say he left the hospital a happy man nonetheless.

"Nothing could upset him," Det. Dilk said, "even he found they weren't going to chop his manhood off."

LOVE ME SLENDER!

By ROBERT SAWYER

Happy newlywed Janice Cartwright knows love can move mountains — of fat.

The once-pudgy brunette peeled off 61 pounds of flab so she could be slim and trim on her wedding day after her fiance threatened to call it off if she didn't lose weight.

"I didn't want to walk down the aisle looking like an elephant," Janice, 24, told The NEWS. "And John said he wouldn't marry me looking like I did — he threatened divorce even before we were married."

The West Auckland, England, bride, who had once weighed 187 pounds, was used to gorging on fatty fried foods and then snacking high-calorie snacks. But when John gave her the ultimatum, the ponderous poundage came off in a hurry.

"I guess you could say the love conquers," said Janice, who now weighs 126 pounds.

"John's love provides the incentive and a high-calorie diet does the rest."

Janice, a production supervisor at a clothing factory, had been overweight all her life. But shortly after she became engaged her weight soared.

"I like girls with a bit of meat on them," said her hubby John, a technician.

"But before the wedding there was no getting around it — she was fat and getting fatter every day!"

"I threatened that unless she lost weight I wouldn't marry her. It was either me or those midnight snacks."

Chubby Janice immediately joined a weight-loss club and started trimming off her excess baggage. For the next four months the determined bride-to-be dropped more than 15 pounds a month.

"When I married John in October, I weighed only 126 pounds," Janice said.

"We went into the church to sign the register and he said I looked sensational!"

Janice now keeps to a diet of about 1,000 calories each day. She still watches her weight carefully even though she's satisfied with her current measurements.

"I don't ever want to go back to looking like I did before," she said. "I have so much more energy and confidence now that I'm slim — and John is very happy with my new figure. We're going to have a wonderful life together."

Fiance tells fatso: 'If you don't get skinny — forget about marriage!'

...so she drops 61 pounds!

AFTER the sweet-but-fat, plump-limbed Janice Cartwright is scooped up by her new hubby John

BEFORE her brisk wedding Janice was a pretty pudgy who lived on candy bars and lots of buttery treats

Ever wonder about the 7 wonders?

At the reference desk of the New York Public Library the question most often asked is, "What are the Seven Wonders of the World?"

The answer is: The pyramids of Egypt, hanging gardens of Babylon, statue of Zeus at Olympia, Temple of Artemis at Ephesus, the mausoleum at Halicarnassus, the Colossus of Rhodes and Pharos of Alexandria.

Peanut butter quiets noisy dogs

A yappy mutt can be silenced in seconds with a small dollop of peanut butter and crackers.

One spoonful of the nutty goo on a cracker will keep a dog from barking, said animal experts at a convention in Mexico City, Mexico. The dog will forget all about barking while licking the sticky peanut butter off the roof of its mouth. And the pooch will come back begging for more.

Gossy co-worker is grossing us out!

Dear Dotti: A worker in our office uses the toilet several times a day and the stench is terrible. It fills the bathroom and is literally impossible to get rid of.

We've tried everything — disinfectants, air fresheners, even leaving the door open, but the odor simply won't go away. How do we tell this guy about the terrible odor he leaves behind without hurting his feelings? — Stunk Out in Hayward

Dear Stunk: Put a new lock on the bathroom door and give everyone but Mr. Gushey a key. If he tries to get in, tell him the toilet is clogged — and send him to the office next door!

Confidential

Dear Disgusted: Move to Lexington. If your child must pick her nose, the least she can do is eat the evidence!

Dear Hopeful in Hinsdale: I hate to tell you this, pinhead, but if your precious little Lizzy ate her boogers missing five years he ain't NEVER coming back!

Dear Mortified in Walker: I'd kick the jerk's butt all the way down the aisle — and back!

Dear Embarrassed in Fulton: Don't worry about it. A lot of 30-year-old men get nervous on their first date!

Dear Gorgeous in Jackson: Be who do you model for — the Hungry-Man Lobster?

Soldier needs a Dotti pinup

Dear Dotti: I am a Marine serving in Saudi Arabia. For several years I carried with me a photo of you that I clipped out of The NEWS because I respect you and think you're beautiful. You may not believe this, but the Saudi Morality Police — they really exist! — seized the picture and I desperately want another one. What should I? Can you send me one? — S.S. in Saudi Arabia

Dear S.S.: Your pic is in the mail, leatherneck! As for what you're doing in the Middle East, I'm with you all the way!

Lousy schools are a lesson in stupidity

Dear Dotti: What do you think about today's schools? My daughter is in the eighth grade and says going to class is like going to a war zone. Drugs are all over the place and kids are carrying knives and guns. — Parisans in Texas

Dear Parisans: If you want your child to get a good education, encourage her to read and study on her own. I hate to say it, but school officials would rather coddle hoodlums and consequently their fourth doesn't rate the BIBLE.

Big-shot docs make me sick

Dear Dotti: Was the doctor-big-shot disease shrink ever real? I had a 10 a.m. appointment with my physician earlier today and I got there 15 minutes early as a courtesy to him. Well, he'd already come and gone. The doctor didn't see me until noon!

I know this guy makes a fortune and money may not mean anything to him. But I'm a working girl and didn't get paid while I was off the job waiting for him to see me. Why can't these guys keep their appointments, Dotti? And what can your guys tell me about it? — Jobs in Allegheny

Dear Jobs: The last doctor who kept me waiting STILL regrets it! Why? I sent him a bill for $250 to compensate me for lost time and wages and threatened to take him to court if he didn't pay up. The pinpoint I got cost $75 — so I came out $175 ahead!

Should I let my hubby spank me?

Dear Dotti: My husband and I had an argument a few days ago and I really acted childishly, so he put me over his knee and gave me a good spanking. I'm ashamed. Should I have kept my word? — Misbehaving in Minnesota

Dear Misbehaving: Men who hit women are sick, sick, sick. Dump the mf now — before you REALLY get hurt!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33464.

Ask the Countess

Why is my daughter acting nutty?

Dear Countess: I have a beautiful daughter [illegible] but does crazy things like trying to flush her father's tools down the toilet, running into walls and throwing food onto the floor. What can you do for my child, Countess? I'm at my wit's end. — Distressed Mom in Kingsley

Dear Distressed Mom: Your daughter has a brain tumor that is affecting her behavior and must be treated at once. See your doctor immediately. If you move quickly your daughter will recover and the problems you speak of will disappear!

Dear Countess: I was sitting in my living room this morning when I noticed that my daughter's toilet paper was floating down the hallway in my house. She had a black cat ever her face and told me she had something to give to me but I got scared and ran to a neighbor's house. Could you tell me what she was going to give to me? — Fretting in Carleton

Dear Fretting: The universe had a message that is going to change your life forever. You're not ready to accept this message, however and that is why you are to your neighbor's house. Daily prayer and meditation will help you prepare for the message that lay has in give you. And don't worry, dear. When you have what you need you'll be on the path to prosperity and happiness!

Dear Countess: I'm a divorced woman with two children. I have been dating a man for about a year and he has been very good to me and my children. He has never married and has no children of his own. By JOE GREGG

Bra-busting blonde Stephanie Schmidt was fired from her job in a tractor factory — because the scrumptious supervisor was so sexy she violated government safety regulations!

"Stephanie was a fine employee and a wonderful person," said factory boss Franz Boehne. "But with a face and body like hers, no man was safe when she was around.

"She'd saunter by and everybody would turn to look — and the next thing you knew somebody would rip his finger off in one of the machines or crash a forklift into the wall at 30 m.p.h.

"Finally the safety inspectors ordered us to get her out of there before somebody killed themselves.

"They said she was an unsafe distraction in the workplace."

Stunning Stephanie, 29, has filed a $500,000 lawsuit against Boehne and Germany's Workers Safety Board, claiming they acted unfairly when they gave her the heave-ho from the Hamburg assembly plant.

"I couldn't help it if the men got a little carried away when I walked by," pleaded the curvy quality-control supervisor.

"I'm proud of how I look, but I never tried to flaunt it to entice the guys.

"In fact, I always wore loose clothes in the unenlightened hope I'd be safe."

But Boehne and Germany's Workers Safety Board ruled Stephanie couldn't be fired for violating safety regulations in a country where [illegible]

Mom swaps her baby for tape deck!

Heartless teenage mom Teresa Linari couldn't afford to buy a cassette player — so she swapped her 8-month-old baby boy for one!

By ANN HUGHEY

But when the tape deck broke down three weeks later, the coldhearted mom decided she wanted her son back and went crying to the cops for help because the couple she'd traded him to refused to return him.

"All my life, people have told me I have a lovely voice," said Teresa who gave her baby to a childless couple who said their last name was Rodriguez. "I thought if I listened to tapes of other singers and practiced a lot I could become a big star and make lots of money just like Madonna.

"I figured I'd be able to get Mateo back, but things haven't worked out like I thought they would at all. When I went to the Rodriguezes house and told them the tape player had broken and that I wanted Mateo, they wouldn't give him to me. I didn't know what to do so I told them I was calling the police."

The next morning the Buenos Aires, Argentina, mom went to the police for help, but it was too late. By the time authorities got to the Rodriguez house to find her child the place was deserted.

"There was no sign of anyone and not a stick of furniture in the house de Paula. Neighbors had no idea where the family had gone. Apparently they packed up and left in the middle of the night. I sincerely doubt we'll ever find either them or the child. He's gone for good.

"It's tragic because she's not only lost her son but she faces a possible jail term as well. Selling a child is a serious offense."

"We had broken bones and mangled hands, and one fellow was almost swiped when he backed into a paint machine trying to get a better look at her. Another guy spun around, fell off an 18-foot ladder and broke his collarbone.

"The men admitted they just couldn't keep their minds on their work when she was around."

But even the victims of these painful mishaps say they think their full-bodied factory mate something terrible.

"Just knowing she was going to be there gave us a good reason to hustle off to work every morning," admitted sheepish Shephard Schultz, who broke his left arm in a Stephanie-inspired forklift accident.

"Without Steph, the plant may be safer — but it's also a lot more boring."

George Washington [redacted]'t the first prez

. . . and other little known facts about the father of our country

Every American knows that George Washington was the father of our country, but there are a few things about him that you may not have learned in school. For example:

● Washington owned three sets of dentures. The first was carved out of ivy and included eight human teeth; the second was pedaled from a pound of lead and the third, his favorite, was stolen from hippopotamuses every

● George Washington was not the first President of the United States. The first was John Hanson, a delegate from Maryland.

He served under the Articles of Confederation which governed the original 13 states for 14 years before Washington was elected in 1789.

● If George was extremely proud of his healthy and handsome head of hair and, unlike our other forefathers, he refused to wear a wig.

Instead, he powdered his real hair chalk white every day so that it looked like a wig!

● And that well-worn story about little George hay chopping down his pop's cherished cherry tree is pure baloney!

Parson Weems, a Quaker who didn't hesitate to stretch the truth, told the famed tale in his book The Life of Washington, published in 1808.

There are also a lot of reasons why George was said to have been "first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Self-educated, George was a determined leader who defended the Colonies during the French and Indian War, and commanded the Continental Army to victory over the British.

He twice presided over the Continental Congress which created the U.S. Constitution and was unanimously elected to two terms as president.

Pity poor Deborah Albert — she gave birth to 20 pounds of twins a few weeks ago.

The San Jose, Calif., woman delivered 10-pound Katherine Pearl, then followed up with John Ross, who weighed in at a whopping 9 pounds, 7½ ounces.

"That's almost 20 pounds of babies," said Joan Allman, spokesman for El Camino Hospital. "They look like they're ready for kindergarten."

Mrs. Albert and proud pop John Albert say they had no idea they were expecting twin giants. Doctors had told them the babies would be about 6 pounds each.

'Robin Hood' lawyer skips with $millions

. . . and says he used it to feed the poor!

By SUSAN JAMISON

Lawyer Steven Hamer has disappeared and his clients are really upset, authorities say — because he took at least $25 million of their money with him when he dropped out of sight!

The New York attorney apparently has headed for Africa, where he owns gold mines in Sierra Leone, leaving behind a wife and 11 kids. He stole more money than any other single lawyer has ever stolen in U.S. history, prosecutors say.

"He was last seen on New Year's Eve and we don't know where he is now," said Assistant DA Reuters Hirschapf of Manhattan. "We know there's at least $25 million missing with him. Probably 40 of his clients became his victims . . . maybe more.

"Many people lost their entire life savings to him."

Hamer's caper is full of bizarre twists, unless steps in the case say.

The 55-year-old golfer of the community was well respected and trusted until his sudden departure for parts unknown. After his disappearance, the lawyer sent a letter to many of his clients explaining he'd become a sort of modern-day Robin Hood.

"Your money is no longer available, I am sorry to say," he wrote. "I used the money to feed some hungry and poverty-stricken people."

According to the New York Law Journal, Hamer's letter then went on to explain that he had an inoperable brain tumor and only two months to live.

LAWYER Steven Hamer disappeared without a trace

"I made arrangements to spend . . . according to an attorney who is representing Hamer's wife and children. They had no idea he was sick or planning to leave.

"The family is grieving and frustrated," said the lawyer, Michael Mavardino. "They're being bombarded by creditors."

Bill Hamer's whereabouts won't be a mystery long if authorities have their way. They're planning to track the man down and charge him with grand larceny in the first degree — a crime punishable by up to 25 years in jail.

Man commits sewer-cide!

Edouard Vieu decided to see what was at the bottom of a manhole — and drowned when he was swept into the sewers.

The man and a friend climbed down the icy steps of an open manhole in Montreal. One who slipped and fell. They were carried off through underground pipes carrying fresh and polluted water. Vieu's friend Christian Dubreuil climbed to safety, but Vieu disappeared.

"He seems to have gone under and drowned," said police spokesman Michael Cloud. "If he survived he could have come out anywhere. Hypothermia is a possibility because the water is cold as ice."

WOMAN WANTS TO BE BLIND AGAIN — 'CAUSE MEN ARE TOO UGLY!

Miracle surgery backfires

SIGHT: Sarah is sorry she had the operation

By JOE SIXPACK

Long-suffering Sarah Poe had been blind since birth till space-age surgery gave her the wondrous ability to see.

But incredibly, sad-eyed Sarah is now determined to go blind again, because the world is too drab and disgusting for her — and the men are all too ugly!

"I'm not going to take my medicine or do any of the things the doctors say I have to do to retain my sight," the shaken Chicago woman told a reporter.

"I always dreamed of the day I could see all the glorious things I'd only heard about.

"But now that it's happened, I have to admit I'm very disappointed with everything.

"The worst thing is the people. I never imagined that human beings — and especially the guys — could look as ghastly as they do.

"From here on, I'll be perfectly happy to live like I was before — blind and oblivious to all this ugliness."

The bizarre story of triumph and frustration began 34 years ago when Sarah was born with a rare eye ailment that cast her into a world of total darkness.

"The doctors said I would never be able to see and I grew up believing that was true," the disillusioned lady recalled.

"My parents hired the best tutors for me when I was a child, but I always felt so sorry for myself I would daydream for hours about what the world looked like — the color of the trees and the sky and the ocean.

"And I dreamed that someday, somehow, I'd be able to see. I knew all the time that it was impossible, of course — that I was doomed to be blind forever."

But the impossible became miraculous reality last year when sure-handed surgeons performed the delicate operation that opened expectant Sarah's eyes to the world.

"I remember looking up from my hospital bed for the first time and seeing all the people around me — my mom and my doctor and a couple of nurses — and they were all so hideous," she said with a sigh. "All those years I had imagined going to be being very beautiful, but of course they're not. I never dreamed that noses and mouths and ears were so ugly.

"And I never knew we had big, ugly veins bulging out all over. I find it all so disgusting."

And heartsick Sarah is just as disappointed with everything else the world has to offer.

"I'm sorry, but things just aren't what I thought they'd be," said the grim-faced lady. "Even the flowers and sky aren't as colorful and exciting as I'd dreamed.

"The streets of the city are terrible — filled with horrid, sickly-looking people and all that garbage.

"And it's particularly hard for me to eat now, because food is so ghastly looking. It's terrible to actually see a cow or an ugly old fish and then have to sit down and eat one," she said.

Despairing Sarah is so upset by what she's seen that she's refusing to take vital medication prescribed by her doctor. And she's refused to undergo a second round of surgery she needs to retain her sight.

"Frankly, I'd just as soon be blind," she grumped. "There's really nothing out there I care to see anymore."

Butthead!

A stupid gunman who raced into a drugstore holding a gun couldn't sit down for a week after he tried to hide the weapon in his pocket — and shot himself in the butt!

Cops said 19-year-old Irving Booth was chasing his girlfriend down the street and waving the 22-caliber pistol when she suddenly dashed into the London, England, store.

"When he saw the store security guard he tried to stuff the gun in his back pocket and it went off," said pharmacist Glenn Arnold. "He wasn't too bright."

Mexicans jamming plastic up their noses!

Mexican businessman Ruben Lozano is getting rich selling his countrymen a poor man's nose job — two pieces of plastic they can stick up their noses to give themselves an "American look."

The tiny plastic bents convert flat Mexican schnozes into Nordic noses instantly for a few pesos, but a fourth, but of used over time, it crushes your nose," says Mexico City physician Daniel Gregoire, who is not a fan of Lozano's novel device. "It's like sticking two toothpicks up there."

Lozano says he sold a record 10,000 of the plastic bent pegs to open and vacuum who "want

Doc: Kissin's dirty

Kissing is an incredibly dirty practice that can make you sicker than a dog with such things as the rotavirus mold, strep throat, upper respiratory infection and herpes.

"I'm not by any means against kissing that could something," said Dr Hans Breuner in a medical magazine article.

How to handle a freeloading pal

When a friend becomes a freeloader, it can damn the friendship if the problem isn't handled right, say experts — who tell how you can stop a pal from taking advantage without harming the relationship.

The very worst thing you can do is to be reluctant to speak up to a freeloading friend out of fear you'll destroy the friendship, declared Dr Albert Ellerbee.

"It's a mistake that's likely to lead to the very thing you want to avoid," said the doctor.

What happens is you wind up seething inside and either start avoiding your friend, or you eventually blow up and say things that can kill the relationship.

"The last thing you want to do is to blow up at a friend, but neither do you want to let the friend continue imposing on you," agrees Dr Robert Alberti, a psychologist and coauthor of the assertiveness book Your Perfect Right.

Here's what you should do:

- Calmly but firmly explain to your friend that something is bothering you — whether it's your friend's borrowing money, tools or other items, or imposing on your time with special requests.
- Make it clear you feel your pal's requests are unreasonable but emphasize that you're speaking up because you value the friendship and don't want anything to damage it.
- Keep what you have to say short and simple, without any unfriendly remarks, and don't frown or make faces while you speak.
- Rehearse your statement beforehand, so you have it down pat.
- If your friend gets angry, don't lose your cool. Be patient and be ready to be friendly whenever he cools down.
- Finally, be prepared for your friend to slip back into his freeloading ways — that habit is very hard to break.

Wife divorces hubby after he makes them lose 3-legged race

Bopping-mad housewife Frieda Hellman is dumping her stunned hubby Herman, claiming she can no longer stand the sight of him — because the dumb clod made her lose the three-legged race at their company picnic!

By LAUREL DOYLE

Pair had won 11 years in a row at company picnic

"He's a klutz and I don't want to have anything to do with him anymore," fumed Frieda, 41, told a divorce court judge.

"We won that race 11 years in a row and we'd have won it this year if Herman hadn't drunk too much beer and spoiled it for us. There was really no excuse for it and there's just no way I can ever forgive him."

Frieda testified the marriage was so unbalanced to win the race the nasty brute Herman's leg trying to drag back to the finish line," recalled sweet-natured Sylvia.

"But she just couldn't keep up. And when she realized she'd lost the race, she went crazy, treating Herman with her fists and ruining him a rotten host."

He'd had one beer that day, but she accused him of getting drunk and ruining her life.

The very next day, fed-off Frieda stormed down to the courthouse in Burghausen, Germany, and filed for divorce. And after a hearing, hatred Herman agreed to give his stiffed mate her freedom.

"At least I won't have to worry about the three-legged races," he added.

Friends discover dead pig in woman's coffin

By JACK ALEXANDER

Three women had just performed a sacred Jewish ritual over the corpse of Mimi Goldberg when they peeked inside the casket — and found a dead pig!

The eerie discovery was a tremendous shock to the family and friends of the dead woman because the flesh of pigs is considered taboo in Jewish tradition.

Mrs. Goldberg died in Hawaii at the age of 80 and her body was flown back to Oakland, Calif., in a shipping coffin for burial. She was a former Oakland resident.

The dead porker was in a black plastic garbage bag partially concealed by the corpse. No one knows when the bag was placed in the coffin, say authorities. A banana peel, cigarette butts and a crumpled newspaper also were in the bag.

"It was fortunate the body was in a shipping coffin and the coffins were discovered," said H. Andre Blum, a lawyer who may file suit against the Honolulu funeral home on behalf of Ilana Kimm and Roxanne Epstein, two of the three women who performed the purification ritual.

"If it had been buried with it, it could have been a desecration to the cemetery and the whole community."

The dead woman's family has sued the funeral home, Pierson Moriarty, accusing them of desecrating the body with a dead pig and garbage.

The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages from the mortuary for abuse of the corpse, alleging the Goldbergs suffered severe emotional pain.

The funeral home did not return phone calls from The NEWS.

Shocking study reveals:

9 out of 10 kids cheat

— & they're proud of it!

By SUSAN JAMISON

A whopping 90 percent of American kids are sneaky cheaters, studies show — and they're not even ashamed to admit it!

In high school and college, they're peeking at other students' answers, copying from crib notes written on their shirts or sneakers and stealing copies of exams from professors and teachers. And the problem is getting worse, researchers say.

"It's alarming," says psychologist Stephen Davis of Emporia State College in Kansas. "I polled 6,000 students in a wide range of schools and geographic areas. Many percent say they have cheated on exams. Academic integrity is really lacking. As a country we need to worry about this.

"We have to ask, If they're cheated in college, will they not also cheat in the business world and in their interpersonal relationships?"

Davis and other scientists say the youngsters "are not beyond defining cheating as a practical way to get ahead. "Cheating is like military — what they don't know won't hurt them," one student told Davis.

"Cheating in high school is for grades. Cheating in college is for a career," another said.

Experts worry that the widespread dishonesty may have grave consequences. Our kids are choosing instead of honestly trying to learn, lowering educational achievement, they say. What's more, they appear to value that dishonesty brings rewards later in life.

"They see cheating every night on television," Davis points out. "They learn that lots of people cheat to win, by speeding on the freeways, or don't do what they say they're gonna have.

"They don't have any moral fiber. They're manipulated by external factors — the desire to get good grades, please their parents, get a job or go to the right schools."

Davis' shocking findings are supported by the work of other researchers across the country. Studies by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching revealed at least 60 percent of students at some campuses cheat. A poll of 200 students at Rutgers University showed that one-third of students were hard-core cheaters, 60 percent cheated occasionally and only a quarter of the students never cheated.

Anthropology professor Richard Moffat says his Rutgers study indicates kids cheat out of laziness, revenge, thrill-seeking or to gain an edge over other students. And the problem is continuing to balloon.

Jilted beau trails childhood sweetheart for 39 years

A jilted beau who couldn't take "no" for an answer trailed his childhood sweetheart for 39 years trying to win her back — even though she'd been happily married for 30 years.

Persistent Paul Browning was like a man possessed. Though he'd been jailed and shot in the leg pursuing his beloved Betty Sue Palmer.

Paul and Betty Sue had their first and only date while seniors at a Los Angeles high school in 1941. It wasn't much of a date — and Betty Sue didn't even like Paul.

He went to a basketball game and took a college afterward. There was something weird about him that made me very uncomfortable.

In the weeks and months after that, Paul bombarded Betty Sue with phone calls, begging her to go out with him. "I went 200 miles away to visit legit and had not written him a postcard," she said. "It was Paul. He had moved in the same room and gotten a job.

BLONDE BEAUTY MASTERMINDS MURDER NO. 2

SMARTY: wedding picture Husband Gregg was found dead with a bullet in his head.

By SUSAN JIMISON

Sexy blonde schoolteacher Pamela Smart is in jail awaiting trial, charged with seducing a teenaged student and convincing him to kill her husband.

Now authorities have accused the former cheerleader of trying to murder again from her jail cell — by arranging to kill a key witness against her!

The witness, 15-year-old Cecelia Pierce, had tape-recorded a conversation in which Pam allegedly incriminated herself.

Cecelia was unhurt because the plot failed, but Pamela has been charged with three additional crimes — accomplice to first-degree murder, conspiracy to commit murder and witness tampering.

The bizarre story involving 23-year-old Pamela Smart has created a furor in Derry, N.H., where Pam's husband Gregg was found shot to death on May 1, 1990. At first, authorities believed the housemaster-television host had been shot by burglars.

But 14 days later Pamela Smart stunned police when she started crying while police were trying to capture the man involved in the death of her husband of 11 months. And as their investigations continued, a tale of betrayal and evil emerged.

According to authorities, Pamela wanted out of her marriage, but didn't want to bother with divorce. So the high school teacher seduced a 15-year-old student and set him and his pals to kill Smart, 24, police say.

The three students said that they went to the Smarts' home and waited for Gregg, shooting him once in the head as he came to the door after dark. William Flynn, now 17, and his pals Patrick Randall, 17, and Vance Lattime, 18, have pleaded guilty and agreed to testify against Pamela Smart.

KNOCKOUT Pamela Smart is taken from police headquarters in handcuffs by lawmen

Ex-teacher seduced teen, turned him into killer then plotted another hit from her jail cell

[illegible] and that she wanted to have an affair with him, but did not want to do so until after Gregory's death," said Derryville Daniel E. Feliciano of the Derry Police Department. In an affidavit filed with the court.

"She said she had to kill Gregg because if she divorced him he would take all the [illegible] the dog and leave her with the place to live. In addition, she would not be able to date because he would follow her around.

"Pamela Smart discussed setting up the apartment to make it appear as though a burglary had taken place. Mrs. Smart told [illegible] to wear black clothes to pull his hair back and to make sure no one saw him in the neighborhood."

Their hair-raised client is in custody in the murder of her husband.

But police struggled with Cecelia Pierce — Pamela's student — to wear a tape recorder and discuss the crime with Pamela.

They got devastating proof of the young wife's guilt when Pamela told Cecelia, "You've got to lie. If you don't I'll spend the rest of my life in the slammer," according to authorities.

"Mrs. Smart told [illegible] she planned and carried out the execution of her husband," said assistant attorney general Cynthia White.

The bubbly blonde bride insists she's not guilty, but she hasn't screamed in remorse during her interview. On August 1, 1990, Pamela was arrested and charged with accomplice to first-degree murder.

Since then she has been held without bail in the state women's prison, where the discussions about having Cecelia killed allegedly occurred.

Pamela Smart's trial is scheduled for this month.

Bad check addict

Anthony Thompson blew thousands of dollars on limousine rides and cellular phones but there was just one small problem — he never used his own money.

The 39-year-old Delray Beach, Fla., man financed his wild spending sprees by using stolen checks. And now he's going to have to pay the price.

Circuit Court Judge James Carlisle sentenced Thompson to 30 years for bouncing thousands of dollars worth of bad checks. The judge increased Thompson's sentence from 5 to 30 years after he failed to show up in court.

CHEERLEADERS GIVE GAL-CRAZY GEEZER FATAL HEART ATTACK

WIDE-EYED Ervin died with a smile on his face.

It was his first — and last — basketball game

By JOE BERGER

Ailing widower Ervin Bagi had been a shut-in for eight heartbreaking years before his adoring family bundled him up and took him to the first basketball game of his life.

But the happy outing turned to horror when the girl-crazy grampa keeled over dead of a heart attack — while watching a dozen dazzling cheerleaders strut their stuff!

"The doctor said all those pretty girls were just too much for the poor old guy," grieving granddaughter Sharon Glenn, 18, told a reporter in Chicago.

"Grandpa always did have an eye for the women, but he'd been in the country just a couple of weeks and had never seen anything quite like our Arlington cheerleaders.

"The girls were out there dancing and kicking before the game started, and the closer they got, the bigger his eyes got. It was like he couldn't believe what he was seeing.

"Then, when they got right in front of him, he just clutched his chest and slumped over dead."

The bizarre story began two weeks earlier when 83-year-old Ervin's American relatives flew him in from Hungary to spend his remaining days with them.

"Grandpa had been pretty sick — doctors were he wracked his body in a car accident in [illegible] Sharon recalled. "Our grandma took care of him until she died last fall, and then he had to live in a convalescent home. We hated the idea of him being stuck in one of those places, so my mother and six of us grandkids pooled our money and brought him over.

"He was so worn out by the [illegible] that he [illegible] around the house for a couple of weeks, and then we decided to take him into his wheelchair and give him a good old-fashioned night on the town."

The first stop was a college basketball game — and it proved to be wide-eyed Ervin's last.

"We paid a fortune to get seats right down in front because we wanted grandpa to see all the action," said his distraught daughter Eva.

"And I could tell Dad liked what he saw even before the game started. He was so excited by those cheerleaders I thought he was going to come right out of his chair.

"We were all delighted he was having such a wonderful time, and then all of a sudden I looked over and he was dead."

Satan-worshiping couple ran devil's bloodmobile, say cops

POLICE are looking for Sedonans and Sarah Porterfield, who reportedly sold blood to Satan worshipers from their home in Sedona, Ariz.

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Cops are searching for a couple they believe operated a devil's bloodmobile from their Arizona home and sold blood to Satan worshipers throughout the United States.

"We know of 50 to 60 young kids who repeatedly sold them small vials of blood for $10 a crack over a period of several months," said Sedona Police Detective Carl Lasky.

The police dragnet is aimed at a couple identified as Benjamin and Sarah Porterfield, who have several small children, according to police.

The couple abruptly left in a hurry when they learned that cops were questioning several young people who sold them blood, said Det. Lasky.

"We found a book on satanic rituals, a satanic bible, and photographs and posters of satanic religious symbols," he added.

An arsenal of weapons, including two shotguns, two handguns and a M-16 submachine gun with a silencer was found in their home, cops said.

"We believe there was some type of marketing activity going on there involving the selling of blood — perhaps to other people who worship Satan," Det. Lasky told The AP/WS.

Police hope computer equipment in the couple's home will provide a clue. Computer experts from the State Department of Public Safety are en route to Sedona to try and break the computer codes and gain access to the data, cops said.

An 11-year-old neighbor said the couple treated him well, but told police there were some strange things about them.

"There was always weird, loud music in the middle of the night at the Porterfields' house," he said.

Police have charged the couple with theft, child abuse and unlawful practice of medicine, say authorities.

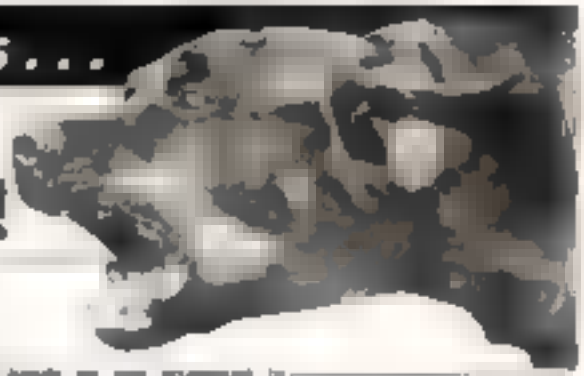
Drug-sniffing dog attacks girl during classroom demonstration!



A class of fifth-grade students could only watch in horror — as a drug-sniffing police dog viciously attacked a helpless schoolgirl!

Ten-year-old Geri Cobb was severely mauled when a police dog trained to seek out drugs suddenly turned on her without warning during a classroom demonstration.

"He attacked her without provocation and for no apparent reason," said Lt. Major Kenneth Harp of the Nicholasville, Ky., police department.

"We were very shocked by the attack. The dog is normally very friendly. He's been used many times before in classroom demonstrations without any problems."

By MARTHA ATKINS

The black Labrador retriever named Bruiser had been brought to the elementary school as part of the police department's efforts to promote a program to [illegible] and drug awareness in the community.

"We'd been putting him through various drills," said Lt. Major Harp. "He'd recovered one bag of simulated narcotics already.

"When he recovered the second bag he attacked the girl.

"He went up on her about chest high and it seemed like the first thing he grabbed was her hair. She screamed, put both her hands up and was overpowered to stand up.

"That's when the dog took her to the ground."

The fifth grader received 48 stitches for holes to her right hand and arm and the back of her head.

She is expected to make a full recovery.

So far no decision has been made as to what will happen to Bruiser, and the dog is being kept under quarantine while the police investigation continues.

COPS BUST SLOW DOC

The only doctor on duty at a hospital emergency room was arrested because he didn't take a blood sample from a supposed drunken driver quickly enough.

Dr. Bruce Harvey of Omaha, Neb., was arrested for obstructing a police officer.

According to hospital officials, Dr. Harvey wanted to attend to other patients before he took the blood sample for the alcohol test. The cops wanted the blood drawn immediately because of concerns about the accuracy of the test results.

'She cost me a lot of money and now I want it back,' says jilted beau

I'M SUING MY EX-FIANCÉE FOR $25,000 — BECAUSE SHE DUMPED ME!

TAMPA, [redacted] — Heartbroken [redacted] Kinner is suing his former fiancee [redacted] Glinka for a whopping $25,000 — [redacted] she dumped him!

"I paid her bills, bought her an engagement ring and [redacted] her dozens of roses," said the man. "She [redacted] me a lot of money.

"We were also planning to go into business together but she never paid for anything. Now I want my money back. She misrepresented herself."

In his lawsuit, the jilted boyfriend claims he not only spent thousands of dollars on wedding preparations but the broken engagement caused him "extreme humiliation and anguish."

The couple met through the bank where Marie, 42, works. She handled the account for the store that Jeff managed. From the moment he first laid eyes on her, Jeff thought he'd found the girl of his dreams.

The two began dating and in no time at all the lovebirds were talking marriage.

"We hit it off real well right from the start," said Jeff, 42. "At first, everything was just perfect."

After a whirlwind romance, the love-struck couple got engaged three weeks later on a trip to St. Augustine. Unfortunately, things began to go downhill from there, and two weeks later Marie called off the wedding.

"All of a sudden she just changed," recalled Jeff. "I don't know what happened. It was like the more she fell in love with me the more she tried to destroy the relationship.

"We'd made all these plans. I had the photographer, flowers and even a yacht all lined up. Then Marie told me she had changed her mind and couldn't marry me."

Jeff, who is acting as his own attorney, says he demands Marie pay him back because he was hoping to patch things up with Marie before his patience came to an end.

"She won't have anything to do with me," he said. "She was the only person I could talk to. I'm still hurt over what happened."

Miss Glinka could not be reached for comment.

Desert troops told: 'Don't cuss the donkeys'

British troops are in hot water in the Middle East — for cussing donkeys!

Saudi citizens complained to British authorities about loud and obscene language from British soldiers moving food and ammunition supplies on the public streets. Frustrated soldiers claim that stubborn donkeys used to transport the goods have them fit to be tied.

"We asked our Saudi Arabian allies for assistance in finding transport to move these supplies up to the front and they gave us these blankety-blank donkeys," explained Cedric Pullen, whose unit is under fire for using foul language.

"Now they're using it [all] as an excuse. They don't like the way we talk to the donkeys. We can't give these beasts what for if they won't move.

"If they don't like the way we talk, they ought to put us in the cabs of trucks so we can cuss in privacy."

British officials warned troops to modify their language and formally requested four-wheeled vehicles to replace the donkeys.

ZOO'S STAR EXHIBIT IS A BUM!

He lives in a cage — and he's never been happier!

By REBECCA WALDING

The star attraction at the Central Austrian Zoo is a bum who moved into an empty cage six months ago — and still calls it home!

Human rights activists say zoo management is taking advantage of 58-year-old Hermann Kruger but the bum says he's happier than he's been in years.

"This is the life," he said. "I've got a roof over my head, plenty of company and three square meals a day.

"I don't know why so many people come to gawk and stare. I guess they've never seen a human up close before."

Zoo director Peter Schultz has taken a lot of heat but says Kruger is welcome to stay as long as he likes.

"It's not like he's our prisoner — he can leave any time he wants," said Schultz. "But if you ask me he's probably going to stay awhile."

Kruger usually spends his days curled up in a blanket or petting his 13-lb. Pekinese dog, Nikki, who he rarely puts down.

Even pet groomers say Nikki is visitors' favorite — Kruger lets peanuts, popcorn and cigarettes through the bars so they can watch Nikki eat and smoke.

Human rights activist Helga Sport has petitioned officials to close the exhibit.

"This man is a human being and what he is doing is degrading," she said. "I get sick to my stomach every time I think about it."

GIANT HOROSCOPE

FOR WEEK OF
Mon., Mar. 11-Sun., Mar. 17

By Countess Sophia Sabak

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Watch your step with a loved one.

A close relationship may be in need of repair, so try to patch up any differences.

Go that extra mile.

A certain someone should have a ping of conscience and finally realize how unfair and hurtful they may have been. A joyful reunion could be at hand.

The goal you have been striving for is on the horizon.

Use the weekend to recharge for the final push.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

This week could be shaping up to be a period of added responsibility. But don't try to do all the worrying yourself. If you need help, ask for it. You'll get it!

Your loyalty to those who have assisted in your rise to long should soon pay great rewards, and no one deserves it more than you.

Put financial woes on the back burner for the weekend. It's time to boost your spirits with a marvelous adventure.

Your time is coming.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20

Take a little break!

You've been driving yourself too hard in too many directions. Try to slow up a bit.

It seems that you can only go so far on your private life.

Get rid of hangers-on — if your kind heart will let you.

You've been trying your level best to give someone the benefit of the doubt — but continuing to do so would be the biggest mistake of your life.

CANCER
June 21-July 22

You could be your own worst enemy this week. Watch that quick temper!

You feel as if you're being tested — and you're right. All eyes are on you.

Rest assured, everything is falling, and will fall, into place.

Come out humbler and hesitant and you may go a lot further. Act if you'll get you a lot further. Act if you'll let them!

In globes of changes, stick with old feelings — all the way.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22

You could be asked to accomplish different tasks involving your unique skills.

You will definitely be up to the challenge!

You could discover a talent you've never realized you had and successfully turn it into a money-maker.

A good buddy should have your best interests at heart this week. Accept advice and take it!

Family members could lose some of your very good advice and maybe some financial support, too.

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22

You deserve a break from the routine of day-to-day life, and the time to get that well-deserved break might well be right now.

Evenings can be wonderful, especially on the weekend.

There should be much warmth and welcome affection in your home.

Go easy for awhile with money.

This is probably not a week to take opinions, so you should be well-advised to say, "No dice," to anyone who tries to cajole you with a sure bet.

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Work, work, work!

Tie up any and all loose ends. You'll really get on the ahead you'll surprise everyone! You should succeed with any of your endeavors this week.

And with your great emotional nature, anything artistic you try should be particularly successful.

Friends may be quick to offer you advice about an opportunity situation that might arise, but make your own decision.

Be calm, cool and collected.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21

This could be a good week to iron out some problems.

You have both the smarts and the guts to see this thing through!

Financial concerns should be put aside temporarily, but if you can't keep money, get those debts out of the way now rather than waiting until you feel flush.

You may be contacted by an old friend or relative wanting to give you something. Be extremely cautious though, because there may be "strings" attached.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Take it easy this week.

Don't push things to their conclusion, don't break new ground — just keep your life steady.

You can deal with many set up by — if you say how for awhile and don't rattle any feathers.

A loving person could be worried about you. Set their mind at ease with a phone call.

Someone whose opinion really matters to you will probably praise you unexpectedly for your patience and sensibility.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Domestic calling should be closed for you this week. You should have some easy days, with no major problems. And a nagging little matter could be solved by the weekend.

You only have a decision to make this week about money matters, and you'd be a real racer to put it off.

In love, make your feelings known.

Singles may meet someone very interesting this week. A stranger could help out in this chance for romance, so go out of your way to meet new people.

If your birthday is this week . . .

The year ahead can be a totally satisfying one.

The key to happiness is perseverance.

Focus on the future and what can be realistically achieved. Your actions may result in good things for months to come.

You should have the cooperation and support of others concerning plans that matter to you.

Luck should be with you. Make most of it by entering contests sweepstakes as often as you can.

It should be your turn to decide what should or shouldn't be done in matters of romance and the home.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

It's time to dig in and sound firm on an important matter that may have been concerning you lately.

Spend a few minutes thinking about where you really want to go and things should fall into place.

A persistently person could make trouble for you with lots of silly demands.

This could be a time for major adjustments which could perhaps lead to a change of residence or even marital status.

Enjoy the changes!

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

This week should begin a period of lots of challenges. Things you've been planning for months should finally come together. These are the days to be bright!

Your tendency to see the humorous side of things should help lighten up the week, and may even make some new friends for you.

You may need to make the first move in a romantic situation, and don't be afraid to compromise.

It's your life and your happiness, so do what you need to.

You can help ease cancer girl's pain

For the past five years little Edie Nichls has lived with the tragedy of cancer — the uncertainty and the pain.

She's only 8, but Edie has already braved four operations, chemotherapy and radiation treatments in an effort to lick the vicious kidney cancer that is ravaging her body.

Edie is a tall child with sparkling blue eyes, but her body is as thin as a reed. The cancer has prevented Edie from gaining weight. At a normal rate for a normal child she would weigh 60 pounds.

Cancer has already robbed Edie of half of the use of her kidneys. Recently doctors were forced to put Edie on a special low protein diet — for the rest of her life.

"Edie can't really play like other kids," says Edie's mom, Linda Nichls. "She has a tube in her side and one in her chest for dialysis and blood samples.

"Sometimes, she gets so lonely because it seems like she can't do much. Cards and letters from NEWS readers might really cheer a lot to her," said Linda.

NEWS readers can fill a sick child's mailbox with cards and letters. Address your greetings to Edie Nichls, Rt. 1 14178 Gamma Circle, Valdosta, Ga. 31601.

Ulcers caused by a bug, not stress, expert says

It's not stress, drinking, smoking or spicy food that lead to painful ulcers but a nasty bug!

The bacteria, called Helicobacter pylori, lives in the mucus lining of the stomach.

Dr. Barry Marshall, a University of Virginia physician, uses high-powered antibiotics in combination with bismuth — the active ingredient in Pepto-Bismol — to treat his patients.

"Eighty-five percent of ulcers [illegible] and never come back after my treatment," Dr. Marshall said.

Dr. Marshall believes that the dreaded ulcer will soon be recognized. "Ulcers as we know them will be history."

Clean your house the Natural way

Be kind to the environment — and save big bucks, too!

By DEREK CLOUTE
Staff writer

You can clean everything from fabrics and furniture to the kitchen sink with safe and effective cleansers that cost only pennies — because you make them yourself!

That's the word from author Annie Berthold-Bond. Her super new book, Clean & Green: The Complete Guide to Nontoxic and Environmentally Safe Housekeeping (Ceres Press), includes 485 ways to clean, polish, disinfect, deodorize, launder and remove stains without hurting yourself or the environment.

Here's a sample:

● Air freshener. Drop a few slices of lemon, grapefruit or orange in a pot with enough water to cover. Simmer gently for an hour or so. If you use aluminum pots this will clean them, too.

● Butcher block cleaner. Pour straight vinegar on block. Scrub. Rinse.

● Drain maintenance. Pour a half-cup baking soda down drain and follow with a half-cup vinegar or lemon juice. The mixture will foam and pop but wait 15 minutes before flushing with hot tap water.

● Window cleaner. Saturate a rag with lemon juice, rub glass until clean.

● Oven cleaner. Sprinkle water generously on bottom of oven, cover with baking soda. Then sprinkle more water on soda.

Let paste set overnight. Wipe off with abrasive pad or plastic cloth.

Rinse thoroughly to remove all baking soda.

● Toilet cleanser. Drop a vitamin C capsule or two in the bowl and leave overnight.

● Furniture polish and cleaning cloth. Mix salt and sparingly olive oil and quarter-cup vinegar or lemon juice in bowl. Dip soft cotton rag in solution and use for dusting, polishing and cleaning wooden furniture. Rag can be used over and over again.

● Wood lightener. Saturate a sponge with lemon juice and apply wood. No need to rinse.

● All-purpose spot remover. Rub rub soda into spot. Clean up with sponge.

● Wallpaper cleaner. Rub away dirt and stains with slices of white bread.

● Laundry bleach. Add a quarter-cup vinegar to wash cycle.

● Chrome cleaner. Slice a lemon in half. Hold by peel and wipe clean.

Last samples of smallpox to be killed

By CLINT THOMAS

The last living viruses of smallpox — now held under tight security by America and the Soviet Union — will be destroyed by the end of 1993.

That's the good news from the World Health Organization, of the United Nations said yesterday.

The superpowers have been storing the frozen viruses at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta and the Research Institute for Viral Preparations in Moscow.

As recently as 1967, small pox wiped out 2 million people a year.

Health officials say the lethal viruses may have been kept as the worst smallpox was used in germ warfare.

BEFORE his flogging, Shri Nasir had to wear a sign around his neck describing his crime.

Teen gets 100 bloody lashes with bamboo cane — for sipping a beer

By SCOTTY PAUL

A teenage boy was given 100 lashes with a bamboo stick because he sipped a beer — and he's lucky cops didn't hack off one of his ears.

Drinking alcohol is forbidden in the Indian state of Kashmir where militants are fighting to end Indian rule.

Shri Nasir, 18, was caught drinking a beer in back of the [illegible] shop where he works on weekends. His boss turned him over to police.

"If he is going to laugh at our laws and act like a fool, he must be prepared to pay the price for his indiscretions," said police inspector Ranjit Shah.

The terrified teen was dragged to the village square and tied to a post. A sign describing his crime was hung around his neck.

He screamed in agony as a burly policeman carried out his punishment — 100 blows to his skinny back. His pain seemed to give great pleasure to the sadistic crowd that gathered to watch. They cheered as welts from the beating formed on his bloody back.

"His punishment may seem severe to those unfamiliar with Muslim law, but no one is exempt from the penalty if they choose to violate it," Inspector Shah said.

Leftover laff

The lady diner said to the waitress, "May I have a bag to carry the leftovers to my dog?"

Her 5-year-old piped up, "Oh, Mother, are we going to get a dog?"

FARMER SHOOTS NOISY JUKEBOX!

Crotchety farmer Hector Leon got so sick of listening to the heavy metal music blaring in his neighborhood bar that he took out his trusty six-shooter — and blasted the jukebox full of holes!

"That used to be a nice quiet place for a man to have a beer after work," hotheaded Hector told police in Toluca, Mexico. "But now all those damn kids come in and play that awful, earsplitting stuff they call music — and it's enough to drive you crazy. I guess I just lost my head."

The fed-up farmer pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct and was ordered to pay $213 in damages.

How to get hitched if you're 35+

If you're getting up in years and still haven't gotten hitched, author Barbara Lovenheim has some interesting marriage stats for you.

In her new book Beating the Marriage Odds: What You Are Smart, Single and Over 35, the writer uses National Center for Health Statistics figures to tell you what your chances are:

- Ages 30 to 34 — 40 percent of men will marry. 30 percent of women will.
- Over 40 — 10 percent of men will marry, and only 5 percent of women will.

"It's difficult for single women to find partners as they get older because there are fewer men available," Miss Lovenheim says. But her statistics do point out that more women over 30 are beating the odds by marrying younger men — about a 30 percent increase over the past 17 years.

Ear's your answers:

Compare your selections with those of your partner. How many of them are similar? If you took the test without any hints from your partner, you will both be greatly surprised by the results.

If 5-7 are similar: This is an extraordinary score, usually made only by identical twins. However, it can indicate a dull relationship because you can read him or her like a book.

If 3-5 are similar: An average rating and a healthy one. There are always new facets to be discovered about him or her. It should keep you on your toes because you cannot take things for granted.

If 0-2 are similar: You know very little about your mate or friend. Sharpen your observation — watch and listen carefully. You'll learn a lot by being more alert to what is going on about you. Are you so busy with yourself that you are not aware of the characteristics of those around you?

BAPTIZES FOLLOWERS — WITH JUMPER CABLES!

By SCOTTY PAUL

In the Electrifying Church of the New Light, fiery preacher Ezra Barnaby "baptizes" his flock with jumper cables hooked up to an auto battery.

"I want them to feel the power of God blast the sin from their body," said the hellfire and brimstone preacher. "I want them to be electrified by the experience."

His tiny church is tucked away in hill country near the Uinta Mountains in northeastern Utah and boasts 137 members, including 31 children.

"The families who belong to our church are farmers and ranchers who live close to the land and read their Bibles every day," said Rev. Barnaby. "We are close-knit people who mind our own business.

"I am the first to admit that our ways of worshiping Jesus are unconventional and may seem strange to some people, but they work," said the Reverend.

"We don't worship idols, erect poisonous snakes or build huge temples in God's name, but we try to practice His will. If our ways trouble outsiders, then let them remain outsiders."

Rev. Barnaby wouldn't say how much voltage is used in his baptismal ceremony. "Obviously we use a harmless . . . but holy amount," he said.

No one older than 70 or younger than 3 is baptized with the jumper cables and battery. Those with severe heart or other medical problems also are excused. The infants baptisms are held four times a year. Candidates kneel before the preacher who has a highly charged car battery rigged to the jumper cables.

"I touch the cables together to create sparks and then I touch them with it," said the fiery preacher. "They tense up for a split second as the shock hits. Then we all bow our heads in prayer."

Harper Wilburn and his two teenage daughters have been baptized by preacher Barnaby.

"I closed my eyes and felt the holy ghost enter my body," said Harper. "My life hasn't been the same since that wonderful day. I have truly been saved."

Rev. Barnaby's storied way of baptizing people has caused no problems with area law enforcement officials.

"People have grown to accept us for what we are — honest, hardworking, God-fearing people," he said.
